Customer Reviews

We went to Utah and visited several National Parks. These maps were great. We did several 15 mile hikes and 40 mile bike rides, without these maps we would have gotten lost. They are very detailed and help you stay on course.

These trails illustrated maps are the first thing I order when I'm traveling to national forest or park to hike and camp. Besides being virtually indestructible they are invaluable with all the information one would need.

These National Geographic Maps are phenomenal. They feel like a waxy paper but if you try to do a small tear along the edge it stretches instead of tearing like paper so they seem to be made from a plastic paper instead. So that is how they are waterproof and tear proof. I found the detail really good with great hiking information and some geological information on many of these maps.

Very good companion to a Bryce Canyon guidebook. The paper quality is excellent and this map will avoid tears and damage due to moisture. It is a good carry-on-the hike companion or as a planning guide to get a feel for the topography of various trails.

I started collecting topo maps as my souvenir from parks I would visit. Now I try to get the maps before heading out. The maps in this series helps me get a better feel for the terrain that I am about to visit.

Map is great - Used it a lot during my trip. I'm now hooked on this type of map.

Perfect in my camera pack while I hike and photograph way outside the tourist zone! Want a shot of a life time? Go out and be safe and explore! My life's images have come from these maps!
